

Joshua Perry-Barnes

ATTORNEY AT LAW

Joshua is the son of a retired Air Force veteran and grew up in Dayton, Ohio. He double majored in Psychology and International Studies at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio before attending law school at the University of South Carolina. While at law school, he clerked at a real estate transactions law firm in Columbia, South Carolina where he gained practical experience and knowledge on the complexities of real property, while also being exposed to the world of litigation.

After law school, Joshua obtained further legal experience by working with bankruptcy and insurance defense law firms. In 2021, he relocated to Litchfield, Minnesota, and practiced with general practice firms where he dealt with real estate, estate planning, and probate files. His estate planning and probate experience continued and broadened with a firm in Mankato, MN. Joshua is happy and excited to be serving Richfield and communities across the Twin Cities and Minnesota at large.

Joshua knew from an early age that he wanted a career where he would interact with and serve people. He enjoys the practice of law because he gets to use his knowledge and training to help individuals and families navigate the problems in their everyday lives. When he is not working hard for his clients, Joshua likes to travel, read, bake, and spend time with family and friends.

Those who know Joshua well describe him as:

- Upbeat – He likes to see the glass as half full and tries to radiate positive energy.
- Determined – He is very goal-oriented and task-driven. If you ask him to do something, he will do it to the very best of his ability.
- Resourceful – He looks for different ways to meet the needs of clients.

Joshua chose to become an attorney because he wanted a career where he would be able to help people and solve problems using his knowledge and training.
